German Opinion.

German Opi on the Isonzo front. An all-Allies' army has been deployed on the Macedonian front. Finally, Rumanis has added her armies to the Allied strength, and has marched forward on the word. On every side strong pressure is being exerted against the Germanic forces—such pressure as compels them to the defensive. Rumanis's entry had a double significance. It added a new embarrussment, and it defined the opinion of the outside world as to the position of the Central Powers. It is impossible to believe that Garman opinion has not been affected by all these portents. We shall not expect, however, to find much direct expression of the change of feeling. Rumania's entry conveyed a shock to the German people, and

The Germans are hard hit, but they will set their teeth firmly. They are in no mood yet to give in, and will not be until the military effort of the Allies has put the issue beyond the reach of doubt. The typical German view at the moment is expressed by the Frankfurter Zeitung. Germany's enemies "are increasing their pressure." and so the whole German people "becomes an embodiment of the Categorical Imperative of duty."

A meeting of the Privy Council was held yesterday in the Council Chamber, Dúblin Castle, when the Right Hon. Sir David Harrel, K.C.B., K.C.V.O., I.S.O., and the Right Hon. the Lord Chief Justices for the Government of Ireland during the absence of His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant. There were present—The Right Hon. the Chief Secretary, the Right Hon. the Chief Secretary, the Right Hon. Thomas Wallace Russell, the Right Hon. Lord Justice Molony.

gerents. Without being cynical, we may believe that Spain's decision will be governed by the result of the war. Neither England nor France wants to interfere in 153 FLEET STREET, LONDON,

The Public Trustee has been giving some information to-day regarding the amount of British property in enemy countries and of the enemy property held here. It seems that there is a balance of some twentythat there is a balance of some twentyfive millions in our favour, for we have in our possession 140 millions of enemy property, while the Germans have 145 millions. A statement on this matter is to be placed before the Cabinet, showing definitely what the actual position is, and it will be for the House of Commons to insist upon the Government's seeing that no insist upon the Government's seeing that no enemy property is allowed to leave this country until the claims of British people against enemy countries have been fully secured. People who have lost property by bombardment or Zeppelin raids ought, in justice, to be compensated from enemy funds. This is a claim supported by hundreds of public bodies throughout the country.

It is possible that the next few weeks will see a Labour split of some importance. The recently formed British Empire Workers' Union is increasing in membership and influence at an extraordinary rate. It has been brought into being to counter the Socialist leanings permeating so many trade unions, and with considerable promise of success. Events in Parliament since the war began have shown clearly that the bulk of the Labour Party is not anti-national, but keenly patriotic and utterly opposed to the underground workings indulged in by the Independent Labour Party and the Union of Democratic Control. These workings are compelling patriotic Labour men to take action in their own justification.

An interesting American "White Book" has just reached this country. It contains the correspondence between Washington and Berlin with regard to the escape of fourteen German naval officers and sailors belonging to interned crews, who had given their word that they would not escape, and, in consequence, had been given considerable liberty. It appears from the White Book that nine out of the fourteen have been traced. Of this number two were caught, two are known to have reached Germany, and one is a prisoner detained at Edinburgh Castle, in Scotland. The two officers who broke their parole and reached Germany are Dr. Kruger-Kroneck, the staff surgeon of the cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich, and Otto Brauer, the second in command of the cruiser. Dr. Kruger-Kroneck, the staff surgeon of the money for the purchase of the Yacht Eclipse by six officers of the Kronprinz Wilhelm, a German auxiliary cruiser interned at Norfolk, Virginia. These six officers made their escape in October, 1915, and no word of their whereabouts has since reached Washington.

The correspondence shows that Dr. Kruger-Kroneck obtained permission to visit Niagara Falls, but never returned. The German Government admits that he has reached Germany, was appointed to the battle cruiser Lutzow. That was one of the ships that was sunk in the battle of Jutland. The

Mr. Chamberlain attended yesterday the production of the film entitled "Empire's Fighters." at the West End Cinema Thestre. He said that they were met on an occasion upon which the Secretary for India might well take part. They were going to see views illustrating the part played by the Indian forces in France. No one could think of Indian co-operation in this war, no one could speak of it, without thinking of the forces in Mesopotamia reinforced largely, but still consisting of a majority of troops sont from India. We had all sympathised with the hardships they had undergone. We had all admired the heroic effort they made for the relief of their conrades at Kut. We shared the disappointment that, owing to the difficulties of climate, communication, and floods, the troops failed to achieve the object they had in view. But he thought that sometimes Mesopotamia bulked too largely in the public eye. As to the Indian contributions

AN IRRESISTIBLE DASH.

The tidings to-day, says the Special Correspondent of The Times, under Sunday's date, are again tidings of victory. The Irish troops who did so well at Guillemont last evening have awept on triumphantly through the village of Ginchy, the whole of which is now firmly in our hands, so rounding out and making complete a brilliant and gallant piece of work. To have bagged both villages, held as they were, one after the other, is as fine a "right and left" as ever fell to troops in the great sport of war. Of the Irishmen's attack on Ginchy there is not much to be told, except that it was of war. Of the Irishmen's attack on Gineny there is not much to be told, except that it was made with the same impetuosity as had carried them through Guillemont to the sunken road a few days before. The chief trouble that the officers had was in holding their men, who frankly proclaimed their discontent with what they called the "diplomacy" which forbade them to co where they wanted namely. "to Hell, and beyond, if there are any Germans hiding on the other side." A story is told of three Irishmen employed at the headquarters on a table. correspondent of the The Times who nas lately visited Ireland writes in a third article to-day:—A great part of the population is in revolt against Government procrastination. It refuses longer to accept "the chameleon's dish," and to "sat the air promise-crammed" by Liberals. It is for that reason that the Nationalist Party is in a pre-carious position in many counties. It is the view of a great number of Irishmen that it liament to succeed in the administration of a country from which large and flourishing centres of industry have been excised. Such an arrangement, they think, would mean economic disaster, would accentuate old animostites, and keep alive old quarrels, and would defeat all prospects of creating an Ireland which would become an integral and loyal part of the British Empire. To preserve the integrity of Ireland there is a strong party which is prepared to sacrifice much which would not have been sacrificed three years ago; there is a readiness to bargain in big there is a readiness to bargain in "big money." It shows her manhood going cheerfully forward to victory. The last picture of the Somme series is also symbolical—German prisoners, obviously glad to be rid of the Kaiser's domination; entraining for English prison camps.

The pictures were witnessed yesterday by a large crowd, which gave them an enthusiastic reception. They were followed with close interest, and, so far as one could observe, none of the spectators displayed any feeling of repugnance to this series of films. Realism has never before been more faithfully achieved through the medium of the cinematograph. The pictures which are being shown under the direction of Mr. J. J. Fisher, will be displayed each day at 2.30 p.m., the performances being under the Secretary, and General Sir John Maxwell. Other interesting war pictures relieve the strain of the display. An agreeable musical programme is played at each exhibition by the band of the Royal Irish Fusiliers, Mr. L. P. Bradley conducting. The programme includes a descriptive suite, "In a Spanish City," composed by Captain R. B. Hayward. It is a florid piece, and contains some effectively descriptive passages, notably those depicting a bull fight and a church service. It was very favourably received yesterday. The music accompanying the pictures is furnished by the theatre orchestra, under the direction of Mr. John Moody.

The same film was shown at the Masterpiece Cinema Theatre before a large audience, upon whom it obviously made a profound impression.

WAR SAVINGS ASSOCIA-

New War Savings Associations, to the number of 427, were affiliated to the National War Savings Committee last week, these making the aggregate 7,346 to date. Twenty-seven new loost committees were formed, bringing the grand total to 465. It has transpired that a War Savings Association in connection with one large London firm included the entire clerical staff, the lift girl, and the charwoman who cleans the premises at night.

Over 150 War Savings Associations have been in Scotland, and numerous local committees are at work to increase the number Lord Strathchyde, Lord Justice-General for Scotland, has consented to act as Chairman of the Scotlish War Savings Committee, in place of Sir Charles B. Renshaw, Bart.

THE IRISH AT GINCHY.

THE IRISH AT GINCHY.

AN IRRESISTIBLE DASH.

The tidings to-day, says the Special Correspondent of The Times, under Sunday's date, are again tidings of victory. The Irish troops who did so well at Guillemont last evening have swept on triumphantly through the village of Ginchy, the whole of which is now firmly in our hands, so rounding out and making complete a brilliant and gallant piece of work. To have bagged both villages, held as they were, one after the other, is as fine a "right and left" as ever fell to troops in the great sport of war. Of the Irishmen's attack on Ginchy there is not much to be told, except that it was made with the same impetuosity as had carried them through Guillemont to the sunken road them through Guillemont to the sunken road for frankly proclaimed their discontent with what they called the "diplomacy" which forbade them to go where they wanted—namely, "to Hell, and beyond, if there are any Germans hiding on the other side." A story is told of three Irishmen employed at the headquarters of one of the units engaged. Shortly before the attack on Ginchy began the three men were missed, but a note was found from them left on a table. It said that they had missed the Guillemont "show" (attending to their duties at headquarters), but they could not miss Ginchy, too, so they had gone to take part in it. This morning they turned up again, very disreputable, dirty, and red-eyed, but with grins on their faces, which not even discipline tould hide. Their punishment had not been awarded, but as their officers are Irishmen, also, I doubt if it will be severe. The advance on Ginchy was made shortly before 5 o'clock. The village was very strongly held, with trenches, dug-outs, machine guns, and rife fre. Certain trenches and machine gun positions shout the ruins of a farm near the centre of the village seem to have been the obstacles which caused most trouble, but the Irishmen, levis of the place, to lift. FIGHTING ON/FRENCH FRONT.

The enemy has made violent, but unavailing, counter-attacks on Ginchy. These resulted in flerce hand-to-hand fighting, in which the British captured 100 prisoners.

On the French front, south of the Somme, the Germans delivered a series of attacks from Berny to Chaulnes. Everywhere the attackers were lorced back with heavy losses.

On the whole Western front there was the usual violent artillery duel.

DEFENCES OF GINCHY.

Ginchy was found to be in an even more formidable state of defence than our people had anticipated. It was liberally stocked with provisions, including jars of cold coffee, abundance of bread, and sacks of apples. In fact, many of the Irishmen have lived well since upon the fare they found.

The fighting in the village, which I have already said was short-lived, was of a violent hand-to-hand character, hombing being the principal method of attack. Our mobile machine gunners did fine work in barraging the ground in advance of our infantry, and well "watering" it in the rear to keep down any snipers or machine guns which might be brought out from lurking places.

The enemy trenches were so battered that the occupants of them in many places crawled out into the opan to seek what shelter they could find among shell craters and in the deep furrows torn by heavy "crumps." The prisoners all agreed as to the terrible conditions under which they lived nowadays in consequence of the interminable intensity of the British artillery fire. The Bavarians, as a rule, were dogged and surly. They said that Germany will fight on and never surrender. It did not appear to occur to them that their own plea of "kamarad" was rather a contradiction to the statement.

should be told not in journalist's prose, but in heroic verse, declares Mr. Phillip Gibbs in his despatch from British Headquarters on Sunday to the Daily Telegaraph. For Ireland will weep tears over it; for many of her sons have fallen; but there will be pride also in the hearts of the Irish people, because these men of Munster, Dublin, and Connaught, and all parts of the West and South, have done such splendid things in courage and endurance, adding a very noble episode to the history of the Celtic race. When they came out of the battle this morning they were weary and spent, and they had left many good comrades behind them; but the spirit of the war sustained them, and they came marching steadily, with their heads held high. It was one of the most moving things I have ever seen in this war. A great painter would have found here a subject to thrill his soul—that long trail of Irish regiments, some of them reduced by their losses, and with but few officers to lead them, coming across a stretch of barren country strewn with the wreckage of two years' bombardment, and rowded with the turmoil of the present fighting, one Irish piper playing them home to the harvest fields of peace, with a lament for those who will never come back. A Brigadier came riding over the fields to meet them. It was the first time he has seen them together since the early dawn of to-day, when they were still fighting beyond the ruins of Ginchy, which they had won by a great assault. "Eyes right," shouted the officers or sergeants who were leading their companies, and the General said-"Carry on there and "Woll done—you did gloriously." "Bravo, Dublins, You did well, damned well, Munsters, my lads." The men's eyes brightened at the sight of him, and they squared up and grinned under Garman caps and German helmets. The music of the Irish pipes went cutting down to the valley, and I watched the men out of sight with something stirring at my heart. S. Sec. It. R. E., Duke of Wellington's Rogt.

MINISTERIAL CRISIS IN GREECE.

A Reuter's telegram, dated Athens, Monday, says:

A Ministerial crisis is firminent. M. Zaimis is believed to have tendered his resignation. The closing of clubs and Reservista Leagues, practically amounting to their dissolution, has come as a great roller. The opposition leagues organised by the Venezelists will disappear, as no distinction is made in the application of the law regarding the flicit carrying of arms. The pourparlers with the Entente regarding Greece's attitude will most be continued. The little progress hither Zaimis Cabinet has only imitted powers, and in the event if its inability imitted powers, and in the event if its inability imitted powers, and in the event if its inability in order to avoid a Ministerial crisis, which would further complicate the situation.

The enemy forces engaged in the attack on Turtukai were composed of 25,000 Germans, 40,000 Bulgarians, and 10,000 Turks. Against these were opposed 25,000 Eumanians.

Experts hold that this purely local reverse, which was due to the inferior strength of the Rumanian Army, will be retrieved at once, for the Rumano-Russian troops now operating in the Dobrudja have proved their superjority over the enemy, and have re-established the strategic situation in our favour.

Great elation has been caused by the coming into action of the Russians, signalized by their brillians achievement in expelling the Bulgarians from Baltchik.

The Russian troops are admirably trained and equipped, and abundantly supplied with munitions. A firm conviction is general that the efforts of the Allied Armies will very soon be crowned by complete success.

CORRESPONDENT.)

KONDOA-IRANGI, July 12.

General van Deventer is a good acout, and does a great deal on his own account. After he has received his report from intelligence officers and scouts, the General likes to go out and form an independent opinion. A case and form an independent opinion. A case where this course was justified in the result was when the brigade was coming through was when the brigade was coming through was in the commanding the only means of advance, and was in strength. The General went out with tiwo of his staff and a patrol. One kopje was mounted, and an enemy force was sighted, apparently retreating. General wan Deventer was not satisfied, and another hill was mounted. The same force was seen, and all but the General were certain that the Germans were withdrawing. General van Deventer wanted to know what was behind the third kopje which was in front of him and his party, and there is no gainsaying that those who followed the command chafed a little at what they considered an unnecessary ride late in the evening, after a hard day's work in the field. On reaching the top of the hill, however, the General's action was justified, for there below in the valley was a body of Germans moving to take part in an enveloping movement. Unseen, the force led by General van Deventer crept down the hillside, until the enemy was well within range, and then the order often sre the wires cut, and so dangerous is it to repair them, there has been a revival of carrier pigeon communication—that is, to the introduction of these birds to earry messages, not for long distances, but as the only dependable medium of communication from the front to the rear. Pigeons and heliographs often bring the only assurances that commanders receive that their troops are still holding their positions. Occasionally even these fail.

"One division which your correspondent visited had had no word from a company in the front line for eight days. They krew they were holding out only by the fire which the British holding out only by the fire which the British eartillery still directed on their sector of the artillery still directed on their sector of the front lines as trenches. They usually consist only of shell craters, linked by rough and ready communication trenches.

"The British artillery, as far as your correspondent observed and as he was informed by officers, is shooting very well. The British aviators have been troublesome. The British dyers have not only helped their artillery immensely in observation, but even co-operated with the infantry in attacks, and in several with the infantry in attacks, and in several people of the defenders with machine guns and peoppered the defenders with machine guns and bombs from elevations as low as 150 yards."
